

SIEMENS

How far can you go on your current automation technology?

A shrinking world means expanding opportunities. The right automation can help you seize them. And Siemens gives you a whole new way of doing it right.

We're the world's automation technology leader. With a worldwide automation group of 20,000 people. Annual sales of nearly $4 billion. And $400 million invested in automation research and development last year alone.

Now, by adding the products of the former industrial controls business of Texas Instruments, we believe we've created the most comprehensive line of automation solutions in the world. From single PLCs to large process control systems. For applications from a simple car wash to the automation of an entire car manufacturing plant.

As Siemens Industrial Automation, we want to bring the benefits of our expertise to you, our customer. Our sales offices and service network are where you need them, across the U.S. and in 120 countries around the world. So you can go as far as you want. Even into the next century.
